Address to Sunday-School Teachers on Methods and Aids They Should Use.

Assembly Lecture by Mr. Hardin on the Human Side of Divine Revelation-Mr. Alford Talks on Early Religious Impressions.

Yesterday morning, at Bethany Park, Rev. J. H. Hardin continued his instructions to Sunday-school teachers, his subject being "Best Methods and Aids for Teachers." He said they must learn by experience these things, and what he would say would only start them on the way toward helping themselves. Many valuable suggestions as to the preparation and teaching of lessons were offered, and the teachers were much pleased with the aids which he commended.

The assembly lecture was also delivered by Mr. Hardin, he speaking on "The Human Side of Divine Revelation." He first assumed that God had revealed himself in the Bible, and of this divine revelation he affirmed that it had a human side, having been preserved in the same manner as other literature, the authors of its different parts having left upon the whole the impress of their particular orders of literary genius and culture. "The human side of revelation," he said, "is also shown in the fact that it has grown as all other things have grown; it is progressive." Mr. Hardin then discussed the philosophy of the human element in revelation. "A revelation for man," he said, "must come to man. This it can only do in human speech. Instead of saying the Bible contains a revelation from God. it would be more accurate to say the Bible contains a record of the divine revelation. The wisdom of the human element in the divine revelation is seen in the fact of its recognition and employment of the powers of the human mind. There are two souls concerned in the development of our religion, the soul of God and of man. From both it has come; without either it could not be. There is perhaps no fact of more profound significance known to this universe than that Jesus was God, manifest in the flesh. Christ was God, but he was human. He was the son of man. Because of this, we can come to God by him as we never have come through a being who could feel no pain, heave no sigh, shed no drop of human blood, and drop no beautiful tear in sympathy with the eyes that weep and hearts that break. Do you feel that Jesus is less divine for having dwelt in clay? It was there that Jesus, in order to be the first fruits of them that order to be the first fruits of them that slept, must needs have taken upon himself not the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham. The fact that those persons who were chosen of God as the active agents of His revelation were under the influence of certain things which operate from the human side is not ignoble. But what is destined to be the bearing of these things on the interpretation and authority of the Bible? One happy effect will be to relieve the church of explaining for the many theories of inspiration.

"The sooner we learn," continued the preacher, "that Christianity is not to stand preacher, "that Christianity is not to stand on theories of inspiration, but that its doctrines are to stand on their merits, the better it will be. We shall also cease to hold God responsible for some of the low grades of the morals described in the Bible. The Bible will not suffer nor the religion of Christ be robbed of either its glory or its power by the admission of this human side. Let criticism do its worst. A Bible that will not retain its hold upon the world after the fullest and most searching and scientific literary criticism to which any age may subject it, is not the Bible for the man who will be satisfied with nothing short of the feeling that his feet rest upon short of the feeling that his feet rest upon the rock of the eternal ages. We shall be the richer and not the poorer for parting from all of which we may be robbed by manly investigation.'

From the clouds which had overhung the park ail morning a drizzling rain began to fall about 2 P. M., so not many on the grounds were present in the tabernacle when the Sunday-school Association exer-cises commenced. After the usual devotional exercises, at the request of a little girl in the audience, Rev. L. H. Jameson sang. Mrs. Flora Dill, of Indianapolis, then read the first paper of the afternoon.
Her subject was "How to Secure the Largest and Best Results on Children's Day," she taking as a text, "A little one shall become a thousand and a small one a strong nation." Mrs. Dill made many valuable suggestions as to rendering space and the decrease of t gestions as to rendering successful the day set apart for the children. When she finished reading it was moved and carried that Mrs. Dill be requested to furnish the paper for publication in the Standard.

Hon. G. W. Alford, of Washington, Ind., Senator from Daviess and Martin counties, followed with an address upon "The Value of Early Religious Impressions" The of Early Religious Impressions." The Catholics realize sharply this value, he said, and consequently say "give me a child for the first seven years, and no matter what may be his life in after years, he will want to have a priest when he dies." It is important to be on hand early, Mr. Alford urged. Keep the springs unpoisoned, start children right, and get them in the habit of doing things right when they are young. A little business was then transacted by the association, the reports of the committees on ways and means, auditing, resolu-tions, enrollment, evangelization of the State, and nomination of officers were read and adopted. Miss Jessie Brown, of Ohio, in the absence of Mrs. F. W. Palmer, who was to have occupied the time, spoke interestingly on "How the Sunday-school Helps the At 7:30 P. M. the reports from various schools and pledges for the support of the State evangelist were completed, more than $1,000 having been contributed, a tenth of which was donated by Butler students. Mr. Hardin followed this with a short address upon "Boxes." To-day Miss Jessie H. Brown will deliver the assembly lecture on "The Heroine of To-day." In the afternoon the Woman's Board of Miss-sions will hold its first session, and in th-evening Rev. B. Mitchell, a returned mie sionary, will deliver an address.

THE WHISTLE OF AN ACCOMPLICE.

It Gives Warning to a Burglar and Starts Two Policemen on a Hot Chase After Him.

Patrolmen James and Conklin had an exciting chase after a burglar yesterday morning, on East Market street. They first saw a shadow, which seemed innocent enough till it disappeared just after a shrill whistle. Their attention was next attracted to a man in a stooping position, hurrying along behind the fence of Elso Keller's house yard at No. 100 Highland avenue. As the fellow jumped the fence and ran, the officers started after him, firing at him four times. He carried a small satchel which they were anxious to make him drop, but he clung to it and ran with the desperation of a frightened deer. The race continued past the Y. M. C. A. ball park, where a lack of gas-lamps enabled the fugitive to make good his escape. Returning to Mr. Keller's, the patrolman found the family much excited. A search over the house disclosed that the side door was open, and that the burglar had secured entrance into the house, when the signal of his accomplice warned him to leave. Noth-ing was taken, as far as could be discovered.

The Phillips Girls Return Home.

The young Phillips girls whose escapade in running away from their home in North Indianapolis last Saturday has been referred to in the papers, were arrested yesterday at Lebanon. They were found stealing a ride in a box-car. The town marshal secured them transportation and started them home.

Disappearance of a Cigar-Maker. Charles Rebentisch, a cigar-maker, doing business on East Washington street, near East, has disappeared. He leaves a wife in distress, and several creditors are anxious to know where he is. He collected, it is stated by those conversant with his affairs, about $200. When he quit work Monday evening he sent a note to his wife, who lives at No. 224 Madison avenue, that he was about to go away and that, when he found work, he would send for her. A woman in whom Rebentisch was interested is also missing, and the general belief of his friends and the neighborhood in which he lived is that they have left the city to-

Championship Chess Contest in Doubt on Account of Jackson's Failure to Play.

The Indiana Chess Association is now engaged in a very spirited discussion upon a highly technical point, altogether new, and each side of the question has fully as many and as strong advocates as the other. The championship contest came to a close yesterday, with the official score making the following exhibit:

	Ripley	Tague	Wilhelm.	Jaokson.
W. H. Ripley G. G. Tague	01	01	10	1 0	0
W. H. Wilhelm	01	11		1	0
C. O. Jackson	10	11	10	121

By this showing the totals would be follows: Wilhelm Jackson.....1 Mr. Jackson only played in five games, having been called home by sickness in his family. The fact that he did not play in the full complement of games has given rise to the controversy now raging. Mr. Wilhelm having won five games and lost two has a percentage of 71 3/7, while Mr. Brown, who has played in eight games, in which he won five, lost two and drew one, the last counting a half game, has a percentage of only 6834. On the face of the returns Mr. Wilhelm would be entitled to the championship, but here is interposed the fact that his percentage is higher because he has not been in jeopardy as often as Mr. Brown. who has played in eight games. On the other hand, those who are for Mr. Wilhelm say that the fact that he has played but say that the fact that he has played but one game with Mr. Jackson is no fault of his, and the latter's absence should not count against him [Wilhem] nor in Mr. Brown's favor. The question will be settled by the association to-day. One of the best games played in this contest was between Mr. Wilhelm and Mr. Ripley, and the moves were as follows:

These are Ewald Over. who has won seven games and lost three and a half; W. H. Blair, who has won seven and lost one, and E. A Wales, who has won six and lost two. Mr. Over has seven games to play, Mr. Blair six and Mr. Wales eight. The contest will probably conclude at noon to-day.

A CHANCE TO SHOW HERSELF.

The City Should Be Brilliant with Electricity and Gas When the Scientists Come.

With the consent of the councilmen and aldermen during the entertainment of the scientists next week, University Park is to be illuminated with 1,200 incandescent electric lights, and the result, it is said, will be unusually brilliant. "That is only the beginning," said an alderman last night. "of what may be made a wonderful display. Our citizens will have an opportunity of showing what they can do, and I sincerely hope they will avail themselves of "What is your idea about the best way to entertain the scientists?" asked the re-

"There will be two things that we must do—show hospitality in our entertainment and beautify our city. The first will be amply provided for, for I am told that the proper committees are making very successful efforts to secure accommodations. But we have much to do in the way of decoration. Our parks should be lighted with electricity. Then there are the lamps that surmount the ornamental posts at the entrances to the State-house grounds. They should all be lighted. The lighting of the natural-gas arches, I understand, has been provided for, and I would like to see a lot more put up. For years, whenever a city secures a convention of national importance, the decoration always tends toward flags and bunting. But the advance that has been made in the use of electricity enables us to do away with day decoration, to a large extent, and intro-duce a new era. It should be an era of light, and nothing will please the scientists more than a sight of Indianapo-lis under a combination of natural and artificial gas and electricity. We have all three, and they offer many opportunities. If the Commercial Club, which has already done much, will push its efforts still further we can, even in the short time that is left. erect arches and electric lights sufficient to make our streets much more attractive than they are now." GOING TO SURVEY THE FIELD.

Prof. Collett's Opinion About the Shelby County Upheaval to Wait His Investigation.

Prof. John Collett, whose knowledge of the geological resources of Indiana is unquestioned, returned to the city yesterday from French Lick Springs, whither he had gone for his health. His sojourn was cut short by the newspaper accounts of the recent uplift near Waldron, Shelby county, and he will go to the scene of the phenomena to-day and make thorough investigation. Being thoroughly familiar with the geology of the county, his very comprehensive survey having been published in the Geological Report of 1883, he is eminently fitted for the task that he has assigned himself, and the result of his investigations will be looked for with much interest. "I shall go over the ground very carefully," said the Professor to the Journal reporter, "but until I do so I will not hazard an opinion of any kind upon the matter. The thermal wells of Shelby county have long excited attention. The theory that this heat is caused by pressure of rocks against each other I hold to be incorrect. It is from the internal heat of the earth. I do not know how long I shall remain at Waldron. It may be that one day will be sufficient. If not, I shall remain long enough to complete my inquiries, no matter how long it takes."

The Colored Masons. The Independent Union Grand Lodge of Colored Masons continued its sessions yesterday at No. 115 East Washington street. The reports of the grand officers that were submitted contained only matter of interest to the order. Grand Master J. H. Walker, of Terre Haute, congratulated the delegates on the growth and prosperity of the order. The committee on jurisprudence reported favorably on several proposed amendments to the constitution, which led to a heated discussion. The election of officers will occur at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and at 9 o'clock to-night the new officers will be publicly installed at the meeting on the fair grounds, where a picnic is to be held by the lodges of this city. The lodge will close its proceed-

OLD SETTLERS OF MARION COUNTY.

Their Annual Picnic Representative of a Prosperous Farming Community.

The eighth annual picnic of the Marion county old settlers, which took place yesterday in Hoffman's grove, on White river, near Broad Ripple, exceeded both in point of numbers and in the interest attaching to the occasion all previous gatherings of these worthy pioneers and their descendants. There seemed to be miles of buggies and carriages, and the remark of the city folks who were present was to the effect that there was not a shabby-looking vehicle nor a scraggy horse in the entire cavalcade. The people, too, young and old. grandfathers and grandmothers, young men and maidens, were all well dressed and well fed. There were fully three thousand persons gathered in the beautiful grove and a better exposition of a peaceful and prosperous farming community is probably not to be found on this earth. They came with immense baskets, the sides of which were bulging out with the provision within which was to be spread out into a sumptnous dinner.

After the throng had gathered and sufficient time had passed for acquaintances to meet and shake hands, the meeting was called to order by Robert Johnson, as president of the Old Settlers' Association. There was sufficient diversity in the programme to please everyone. Among the best things in the entertainment was the music furnished by a number of sweetfaced little girls of the neighborhood. Emsley Johnson, a twelve-year-old boy. Emsley Johnson, a twelve-year-old boy, gave a history of the early settlers of the county, which was excellent, both in its matter and in the style of delivery. Post-master Wallace, of this city, made a speech replete with incidents of early days. He tolder the hardihood and integrity of the pioneers, and then, coming to the present day, dwelt upon the duties of citizenship. He spoke in glowing terms of the good done to younger generations by such meetings as that before him, and the effect of bringing people together in a social way by means of such associations.
At the conclusion of Mr. Wallace's remarks dinner was called. In the afternoon there was a contest amoung four young ladies for a prize for declamation, which was one of the most interesting features of the day. Judge Niblack made an address filled with the most interesting reminiscence. The coming on of a shower cut short the exercises to some extent, but did not mar the enjoyment of a day most pleasantly spent.

WHAT PULITICIANS ARE DOING.

A Missouri Greenbacker Comes to Assist Democracy and Uncle Isaac.

H. Martin Williamscame here a few days ago from Missouri to help the Democrats out in the herculean effort they are making to carry Indiana next fall. He is a Greenbacker and was the nominee of that party for Governor two years ago, and his aid was invoked by the Indiana Democratic leaders to counteract the influence of the silvercoinage bill recently passed by a Republican Congress. Knowing that they cannot spare any votes the Democrats lost no time getting the Missouri politician here to assist Richard Gregg in the task of delivering over the Greenback vote of the Hoosier State. Upon his arrival here Mr. Williams sent for editor Morss, of the Sentinel, the two were closeted for time, arranging a plan of campaign. Leon Bailey then took the man from Missouri in tow until the arrival of Chairman Jewett, when there was a long conference, at which it was decided that H. Martin should do some missionary work H. Martin should do some missionary work in various sections of the State. Most significant of all, however, was the visit of ex-Governor Gray yesterday morning. The latter was with Mr. Williams, at the Grand Hotel, for an hour or more, and when they parted Uncle Isaac walked out of the hostelry with the springy gait of a pedestrian in training and a well-satisfied look on his face. It was evident that Missouri's Greenback vote had been pledged to his support in the coming fight for the to his support in the coming fight for the presidential nomination.

Ex-Auditor of State James H. Rice has proposed the ex-Governor's name for the highest office in the gift of the people, but those who know the relations existing between the two gentlemen are well aware that Rice is about as sincere in the matter as he would be in wishing the Republicans success in the fall election. His idea is simply to work up a solid delegation for Gray and turn it over at the proper time to Calvin S. Brice, his friendship for whom is well known. Brice is laying low until Cleveland and Hill shall have effectually killed themselves in New York, a la Kilkenny cats, and then his golden opportunity will have arrived. The Gray blind will be dropped from the Indiana Democracy when it is deemed advisable, and they will be found with Rice at their head, rallying to the support of the Ohio millionaire.

The deluded Democratic ex-Governor of Indiana is intensely in earnest in his presi-dential canvass. The other day a friend called to see him and naturally asked, after greetings had been exchanged, how he was feeling. "Oh, I'm feeling first-rate," replied Uncle Isaac, with a self-satisfied smile. "It is only natural that I should when I am receiving letters every day from all parts of the country promising to support me in 1892." "For second place on the ticket?" queried the friend. "No, sir," answered the ex-Governor with some asperity; "for first place." Twelfth District Republicans. Chairman Michener has been in the northern part of the State for several days, and returned home last evening, his east point of political visitation being Fort Wayne. He was there yesterday and had a conference with the Twelfth district Republicans. They came to the conference with enthusiasm and promises of hard work during the next few months. They have that abiding faith in the Republican party that makes Democrats tremble and mugwumps mourn. "It was as good a meeting of leading men of the party," said Chairman Michener, "as I ever attended. Those at Evansville and Mitchell last week were large, harmonious and enthusiastic. So was the one at Fort Wayne." The Twelfth district congressional convention will be held at Lagrange, Sept. 16.

ACCIDENTS OF A DAY.

A Plumber with Lighted Match Causes a

Natural Gas Explosion. The firemen were called to No. 274 East Washington street yesterday, just before 1 o'clock, by a natural gas explosion, followed by a threatened fire. The accident occurred on the third floor, in the rear room of the building, occupied by Mrs. Mary Adkinson, who had moved into the place two weeks before, and was having the gas piped into her cook-stove. The plumber had been at work all the morning and had so far finished the job that he was ready to make the test. Although warned by Mrs. Adkinson that the gas was escaping and could be detected by the smell, he struck a match and lighted the gas in the stove. He then lighted a match to test a joint at the level of the floor, when the explosion followed, making a loud report. The north wall of the building was blown so far out that it was about ready to fall. Mrs. Adkinson was thrown down, but managed to recover herself, and, though dazed, run down stairs. The plumber followed quickly, and seemed much frightened. The last seen of him was when he was instructed to go down celler and turn off the gas. Mrs. Mary Kelly and her daughter Kate, liv-ing in the front rooms, and Mrs. Schneider, in an adjoining room, were slightly hurt. Mrs. Kelly was blinded by the dust, but hurried into the room to get her bird-cage, and fell between the wall and the floor, bruising her arms and body. But for her daughter catching her she would have fallen to the second floor, and possibly to the ground, as scarcely more than her weight was needed to push the toppling wall out. The explosion caused some inflammable articles to catch fire, but the flame was extinguished without the use of hose. The room below on the second floor was occupied by a carpenter, Henry Springer, who was absent at the time. His effects were more damaged by falling plastering and dirt than even those above. The building, the damaged wall of which had to be pulled down, belongs to a company whose agent is Cruse, the real-estate-dealer, and is damaged to the extent of $300.

Killed at the State-Street Crossing. George Anderson, thirty years of age, was killed, yesterday morning, at the State-street crossing, near his home at No. 62, on the street named. He was a newspaper carrier, and had risen early to go to work. It is supposed he mounted a freight train to ride into the city, and in some way fell under the wheels. He was an epileptic, and, it is thought, was taken with a fit, which caused the fall. The body was mutilated. The remains were taken to Kregelo's morgue. The family of the deceased have had much trouble lately. scarcely two weeks having elapsed since his mother was found dead in bed.

RASSMAN THROWN OVERBOARD.

Benjamin F. Rogers, who was defeated on the Democratic ticket for township trustee in 1886, is trying to stir up a disturbance among his political friends in the Eighth ward, owing to difficulties he has had with his Councilman, Mr. Rassman. The two are barely, it is said, on speaking terms. their hostility toward each other having arisen in the meeting of citizens two weeks ago, when Mr. Rassman severely criticised his constituents for their action on the question of street improvements. "Mr. Rassman." said Mr. Rogers to a Journal reporter, yesterday, "owes his election to Council to me. He was my selection among all the men we have in the Eighth ward, and it was through my influence and my work that he got the nomination."

Rogers Discovered Him and Is Now Trying to Keep Him Out of the Next Council.

"And now you feel hurt at his conduct, do you?" asked the reporter.

"I do not think he has acted squarely with us. He complains that I did not invite him to my house when I had our citizens there to talk over the improvement of Arsenal avenue, but it was his own fault.

And what is more after he learned the

And what is more, after he learned the meeting was to be held he purposely absented himself from home so he could throw the matter up to us afterward. That's the sort of a man we have in Council." And so what seemed at first to be a trifling personal quarrel may develop into a dispute of larger proportions. While no one would hardly prophesy that a faction in the Eighth ward Democracy would affect a national election, it is fair to presume, as Mr. Rogers's friends assert, that unless Mr. Rassman makes amends for his blunders a seat in the next Council will not be his.

Expenses of the State Institutions. The report of the Board of State Charities for the last quarter shows that the total cost of the State benevolent, reform and penal institutions was, during the quarter, for maintenance, $198,787.26; for construction, $66,635.27; a total for three months of $265,422.53. Earnings reduced the total expenses to $216,115.08.

School-Book Requisitions. Since Aug. 1, 1890, there have been issued from the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction 2,601 requisitious for readers, geographies and arithmetics, and 1,853 requisitions for copy-books.

Prohibition Workings in Des Moines.

By a system of arresting a bottle of beer at the expense of $7.25, costs and fees to the State, over $30,000 has been taken from the public treasury at Des Moines without closing a single place where liquor is sold in that city. The system appears to have developed a breed of searchers and witnesses who go about corralling bottles of whisky or beer worth 20 or 25 cents each and then pocketing the fees of prosecution. Any saloon-keeper in Des Moines could make a handsome fortune in three months by entering into a conspiracy with one good, lively, capable firm of searchers and witnesses. SAMANTHA HATTON,

Lafayette, Ind.

The Gun Wa Herb Remedy Co.'s remedies, which have now been in use in America for over two years, have achieved wonderful success, and proven their own merits. They are specifics for dyspepsia, neurolgia, rheumatism, tape-worm, female weakness, consumption, kidney and liver diseases, malaria, urinary troubles, all blood diseases, etc. The remedies are harmless and pleas-sart to take, and, though new to America, are old in China. If you cannot call (examination and advice free), write, giving a full history of your case. All correspondence should be addressed to the
